

After giving some thought about what had happened at school in the early fall before KW's removal as principal it has occurred to me that we had a situation dealing with a math teacher/coach. The teacher was on some type of emergency contract the year before and was required by law to take classes in order to fulfill state requirements prior to the beginning of school or the contract could not be renewed. KW told the board that the teacher had completed these requirements knowing full well that he did not. KW attempted to blame Ruth Ann Medworth, the teacher and the band director/girls basketball coach's wife, for blowing the whistle. The math teacher was also to be a member of the girls' basketball staff. The logic doesn't make sense.

Harlean Pliskin can give you the specifics on the situation and I see that you have her email address.

My home computer has crashed so bear with me.

Good luck and we will do what we can at Northview to help you.

Jan Gambill