

Sent: Thursday, January 21, 2010
Subject: Re: Hello from Northview

Hello. I hope things are well with you. I wanted to mention something that I found out today. Our assistant principal, who was the assistant principal under Wallace, talked with our security lady today. He point blank asked her if Wallace ever asked her to spy on teachers. She said in fact, "He asked me to spy on Ms. Reinoehl." She told him that she was uncomfortable doing this, and he told her to start looking for another job. It is assumed that she complied with his wishes as she kept her job. I do not hold it against her. She is a very weak person and is always has financial difficulties, so he preyed on the weak knowing she couldn't afford to lose her job. I don't know if she would be willing to go on record to say this, but it was common knowledge. I only knew that she was asked to spy on Medworth (as I heard her myself confess this in tears the day after he left). Apparently she said he had just a handful of 6-10 people he was after. I think he thought to make examples of us. I thought you might want to know this. I think this is unethical, but my finace who is an attorney said that it could be viewed that he was just asking her to let him know if we were late to class or to work. He said he could also say that she was just sent to make sure that we weren't doing anything wrong. I said her job was to monitor the kids, not the teachers, but he said he could argue his way out of it. I still say it's wrong.

Also, this assistant principal wondered if it would be helpful if some of us wrote some of your board members letters. Check with your association and see what they think. We would need board members names and addresses and preferably members who were not in Wallace's pocket already.

Let us know. We are sincere about helping.

We're keeping you guys in our thoughts. Keep us posted and let us know if there is anything we can do to help.

Tracey Reinoehl